A court in Brest this week ordered a euro350,000 ($412,000) fine against the master and owner of the Panama-flagged container vessel MSC RHONE for deliberate pollution off the French Atlantic coast in September 2004. Some 90% of the fine will be paid by the vessel's owner, Technomar Shipping of Athens, the balance being borne by the Russian master, Girman Shirokov.

On 21 September 2004, the 29,200-dwt, 1,830-TEU MSC Rhone was seen by a French Navy aircraft with a 30km-long oil slick in its wake as the ship was sailing about 250km off Brittany's Penmarc'h point, on a voyage from Antwerp to Istanbul.

The ship was detained at Brest by the French authorities and was released against the payment of bail. This pollution incident is one of the largest recorded off Brittany in recent months, together with that of the container vessel Maersk Barcelona.

The MSC Rhone is on time charter to Mediterranean Shipping Co and is currently deployed on a regular liner service between North and South America
