Formosa Plastics pushes ahead with fleet clearout

The company, the world's sixth-largest chemical producer by chemical sales, has let go of two of its oldest long range tankers. The two 70,400-dwt sized Formosa Falcon & FPMC P Alpine, fetched $7m each, a very low price for 13-year-old ships with these specifications.

Splash understand that Formosa Plastics first circulated the ships for $11m each. The original asking price is much closer to the fair market values from MSI. Taiwan's Winson is linked to the ships in numerous broking reports.

GREATER CHINA, TANKERS

Winson Group has pocketed up to $4m from some very quick asset plays. The Taiwanese firm has completed the sale of two elderly tankers – Formosa Falcon (now renamed Sino Pacific) and the FPMC P Alpine (renamed Super Lotus).

Broker sources vary on how much the two ships fetched, with one broker report saying $18m en bloc while another report puts the en bloc price at $16m, netting the outfit either $2m or $4m for elderly LR duo it bought at the end of October from compatriot Formosa Plastics at a bargain price.

The Taiwanese company has been so moving fast that one of the ships involved was not even renamed when first circulated for sale.
